That is not correct. The outfall is on the back of the sediment pond.

Mr. Barnes,

I apologize for not including this with my last email, but I do have one more question. Can you please confirm the location of the outfall at this facility? The coordinates which were on the Recertification NOI are shown below. The outfall is usually at the discharge point of the sedimentation pond and should be where you take your samples. From the Google Earth image, this does not look correct, so please let me know.
