Dear Sir,

I am writing in support of the letter sent to you by my former classmate and fellow Arkansan Wesley Norton.

I am a native of Crossett, Arkansas, but spent my vacations with my grandparents at their home in Harrison. The Ozarks and Buffalo River and its environs were my playgrounds. It was there I learned to "float," canoe, fly-fish and rock climb. When I became Little Rock's first white female reporter and first weatherwoman in 1974, my vacations and long weekends continued to revolve around the majesty of our mountains and our country's first national river. I spend the majority of my summers on Lake Hamilton in Hot Springs with frequent "jaunts" into Buffalo River Country.

It would be a crime to jeopardize that rich natural environment by anything or anyone with plans that could contaminate those forests, that farmland and those waters. I pray that you will continue to preserve, conserve and defend those very resources that bring in tourism and create the appeal of "The Natural State."

Yours Very Truly,

Jocelyn White
