Banks has "three doses" of LaGrue and a dose of a blast resistant variety.

Dr. James Gibbons, another rice breeder, developed Cybonnet and Medark.

Cybonnet, formerly RU-1124, has produced yields of up to 200 bushels an acre in experimental plots at the rice center, Gibbons said.

Medark, formerly RU-1151, is a medium-grain, semi-dwarf variety that is a cross between Bengal and short Rico. The cross was originally made by former UA breeder, Dr. Kenneth Gravois.

Gibbons said a lot of medium-grain rice is used in cereal. He said cereal makers have told him they like the uniformity of Medark's grain.
