We feel this problem was due to:

We received approx. 2.8" of rain the three days prior to the first grab sample of the month that was exceptionally high in TSS. The flow of .629 MGD at the exact time of that grab sample is not indicative of the average flow we have which is around .300 MGD. We believe this incorrectly represented a high TSS average for the month of July.

We plan on correcting the problem in this manner:

Nonetheless, we take TSS limits every seriously and are looking at all phases of the sewer plant treatment process to reduce same especially after a rainfall. The heat has increased the algae growth in the sewer lagoons and we have increased the dosage of copper sulfate.

Time estimated that it will take to correct problem:

We expect to see results within the month.
