Hello,

I have spent considerable time this last week educating myself with information provided by both sides of the argument against a proposed waste water permit for the C&H Hog farm. What I have learned is this:

The prospective farmers have met, and in many cases exceeded, every environmental protection standard established by both the EPA and the ADEQ.

Both the federal and state government have these regulations in place to protect one of our states greatest assets; nature. If all of those regs have been met, then why now are we considering raising the bar for random requests at the whim of so called activists with little or no science behind their platform? The opposition is fueled by pure emotion, while the farm has followed all state and federal rules. The Arkansas farmer is the backbone of this blessed state. Do not turn your back on them now. Approve the permit.

Sincerely,
Clark Parker
