Dear Doug Szenher:

Do we not have experts on these subjects working for the state of Arkansas now? Haven't we allowed our state legislature the opportunity to enact laws that will impact our citizens, because they are the ones who stand for election? Why is it some do-gooder lawyer can step in and propose something radical and be treated as if it is the only answer to the situation? These questions all carry answers that are offensive to me, because they all imply the wrong people are making decisions that have serious impacts on our lives and livelihoods.

Sincerely,

James Widner
