

From: Justin Teague [mailto:travelling_man2007@live.com]

Sent: Wednesday, June 18, 2014 7:10 PM

To: Reg-Comment

Subject: C&H Hog Farm

From looking at both parties point of view (those opposing the hog farm and those that are trying to prove the hog farm has little or no impact) it seems like one party is being so close minded that they are unable to see the evidence the other party has presented stating the hog farm has no impact on the BRW. They are allowing emotions (fear/paranoia) to govern their thinking.

Based upon my experience I think tourism has more impact than the hog farm. Think about it realistically (especially if you're a woman), if you are swimming and feel natures call, are you going to get out of the river or just go where you are? Also, what about the trash that river-goers leave behind?

I think those opposing the hog farm need to shut up and let this go. They are interfering with an honest families effort of trying to make a living. This issue is also wasting the valuable resource of time. They need to suck it up, quit being unreasonable and close minded and let it be.

v/r

-A concerned citizen