Subject: CAFO on Buffalo National River

As a Christian and a registered voter, I am concerned about the environmental impact of Cargill Inc.'s planned industrial hog farm in the Buffalo National River watershed. Not only is this pristine river at risk but the neighboring town and school will be subjected to the noxious fumes from the CAFO. In the event of flooding (not uncommon in the area), the White River could also be affected by run-off from the waste holding ponds.

It is my understanding that Buffalo River attracted well over 1,000,000 visitors in 2012, spending almost $44,000,000 in the communities surrounding the river. Those numbers alone should be enough to persuade the staunchest capitalist of the economic need to protect the area from all threats of pollution.

Sincerely,
