I could drone on and on about ecological and riparian reasons the Buffalo River should be protected, but if you don't get it by now, you never will.

I went to the Buffalo River the first time as a Boy Scout at Camp Orr. I got my mile swim badge in the Buffalo. I became a member of Order of the Arrow on the Buffalo. I floated it most of my life, including more than 30 trips from Rush to the White River.

If a state agency tasked with protecting environmental quality doesn't understand the importance of the Buffalo River, then why does the agency exist? Just do your damn job.
